3. Susan Ann Bowers, daughter of Daniel Bowers and Aurillia King, was born in 1860 in Lafayette Co, MS. She died on 27 Jan 1897 in Paris, Lafayette Co, MS.

Notes for Samuel Evins McCord:

John T. and Samuel Evins McCord, brothers, lived in Lafayette County, MS. John T. McCord was born 1830 in South Carolina. Samuel E. McCord was born in Mississippi and moved to Cass County, TX with some of children and grandchildren around 1910. Located in southeastern Lafayette County, Paris was reportedly first settled in 1836. One of its earliest settlers was Dr. William Lemuel Paris, who built the first home there, according to Hometown Mississippi by Jim Brieger. Dr. Paris also operated a drug store in the area, and within 20 years of his arrival, the town grew to include a post office, a Masonic lodge, and two churches. "One of the earliest and best schools in the country" was located in the Primitive Baptist Church here in the mid-1800s and was run by an Englishman named Winterton. Later, in 1889, the Paris Normal School was established with a goal of preparing students to attend the university. Whether the town was named for Dr. Paris is a matter of some dispute. Another theory is that early settlers came from Paris, Tennessee, and named the Mississippi town in its honor, according to Joan Bratton, a descendant of some early residents. Joan's husband Theron also spent his early childhood in Paris and said he remembers the town as an active community with three stores selling groceries, clothing, and other general wares. He attended the Paris School, which was located near the current intersection of Highways 9 West and 315. Indeed, Paris did thrive at one time. After being officially incorporated in 1873, the town boasted general stores, a blacksmith, and a horse-powered grist mill and cotton gin, according to the Lafayette County Heritage Book. In 1905, a steam-operated cotton gin was built here, and in 1939, the Oxford Eagle proclaimed that many of the town's residents were now enjoying electricity.

Notes for Letitia Tennent:

Letters from Tennent's daughter Letitia writing from Tempo, Bushford, [near Cootehill, Co. Monaghan], Dublin, Ballybay, Belfast, Rostrevor [Co. Down] and London. They document her time spent at schools in Dublin and visits to her grandmother [Letitia Jackson] at Ballybay, and sister Theresa and her husband Roswell [King] in London. Later, they concern marriage proposals, first from Butler Brooke [see above] and then James Emerson, her future husband, both of which Letitia discusses at great length. Following her marriage to Emerson, she writes frequently to her father assuring him of her happiness, but also relates news of cholera outbreaks in England.

129. Jean was born in 1638 in Argyll, Scotland.

Notes for James Duncan MacKorda:

JAMES MCCORD, BORN 1620, TRADITIONAL SCOTTISH CLAN CHIEFTAIN HAD SEVERAL GRANDSONS WHO CAME BY WAY OF NORTHERN IRELAND TO AMERICA IN 1720-38. THEY SETTLED IN THE LOWER HUDSON RIVER VALLEY OF NEW YORK, NEAR CHARLOTTESVILLE, VIRGINIA, IN BOTH LANCASTER AND YORK COUNTIES, PENNSYLVANIA, AND AT CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA. THEY LEFT A GREAT HERITAGE, ONE OF REVERENCE FOR GOD, LOYALTY TO COUNTRY, AND LOVE OF FAMILY. THEY AND MANY OF THEIR DESCENDANTS MADE GREAT SACRIFICES THAT WE MIGHT ENJOY FREEDOM AND LIBERTY. TODAY, THEIR DESCENDANTS AROUND THE WORLD HONOR THAT HERITAGE. One of the largest family groups in the American Revolution, over 100 McCords served in most of its major battles. Some 11 McCords were at Valley Forge with General George Washington in the bitter winter of 1777-78. Earlier, McCords were in the French and Indian War where some were killed or taken captive by the French and Indians at Ft. McCord, near Chambersburg, Pennsylvania on April 1, 1756, and held for 1-6 years. Some were recovered in a daring rescue 5 months later by Colonel John Armstrong, Commander of the Frontier Pennsylvania Rangers at Kittanning, near present-day Pittsburgh. Those recovered included Mary McCord. Jean McCord Lowry and her 3 children who were recovered later. For the rescue at Kittanning, Colonel John Armstrong and his Frontier Ranger officers received medals struck in their honor by John Penn of the William Penn Family. Ft. McCord was the most famous private fort in America in the French and Indian War. Most of the McCords in the American Revolution appear related to a common ancestor in Scotland, Clan Chieftain James MacKorda, who, by strong tradition was born 1620 on the Isle of Skye, Scotland and was killed at the famous Battle of Killiecrankie Pass, Scotland in July 1689. Various other McCords came from other parts of Scotland in the 1600'-1800's. After the Battle of Killecrankie Pass, John McCord, son of the Clan Chieftain, took the remaining members of the McCord family to Ulster, Northern Ireland where they lived until 1720-1740 when many of them moved to America. Several of Clan Chieftain James MacKorda's grandsons who came to America in 1720-1738 settled in Pennsylvania, Virginia, New York and South Carolina. They were William, David, James and John McCord who went to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania; Andrew and Johannes McCord who went to Augusta and Albemarle County, Virginia; John and James McCord who went to the lower Hudson River Valley in New York; and Barnard McCord who went to Charleston, South Carolina. Each of these appear related to the son of Clan Chieftain James MacKorda, John McCord (born 1660), who was married to Mary MacDougall. During the American Revolution, the 100 McCords knew or served with many of the most famous Americans in the Revolution and some in the Continental Congress. By 1790 McCord families pioneering the American frontier were living in 13 states including Maine, New Hampshire, New York, NJ Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky. By 1820, there were over 400 McCord families in these states and in Illinois and Indiana, Michigan and Ohio, Arkansas and Alabama, and other areas of the Great West. Most of these McCords appear descended from the original McCord settlers in America of 1720-38. Many of the descendants of these original settlers and those who served in the American Revolution have not yet been traced.

---

Jean and James Duncan MacKorda had the following children:
